

The colonists sailed across the ocean to make new homes where they could worship God freely.

In their new homes, many colonists gathered with their families to worship God.

The colonists wanted to help make the rules for their own homes and communities.

The colonists worked together and wrote an important paper:
America would be a new country.